MTC may use herbicide along county highways

There is a possibility that the Ministry of Transportation and Communications (MTC) could be using herbicides 2-4-5-T and 2-4-5-TP along roadsides in Haliburton County this summer. A spokesman for the MTC in Huntsville, District Manager Doug White, stated that the ministry has applied to the Ministry of Environment (MOE) to use the herbicide in its roadside spraying program.

The herbicide has been at the centre of controversy recently because of alleged connection between it and Reyes syndrome, a disease which has caused a number of deaths among children. Last year the Ministry of the Environment ordered a halt to the use of the chemical spray containing dioxin. The stocks of the product in Ontario were placed in storage.

Harry Parrott, the Minister of Environment recently announced however, he would allow the application of the remaining supplies of 2-4-5-T and 2-4-5-TP under controlled conditions. He stated at that time that the herbicide was becoming a problem to store because the containers were being eaten away by the product.

Doug White at the Huntsville MTC office told The Times on Tuesday that his ministry had applied to make use of the herbicide during the coming summer. It is sprayed from specially constructed trucks onto the highway rights-of-way to control tree and weed growth.

"The people who are applying the herbicide are licensed by the MOE," White said. "The trucks are inspected by MOE officials and the applications of the herbicide is done under very strict controls."

He told The Times that under the regulations spraying is not done near open water, such as rivers, lakes or ponds.

White could not say if the chemical would be used specifically in Haliburton County. He said the application for the use of the herbicide had been made by the MTC for all regions of the province.

When asked if the public would be notified when and where spraying of the herbicide would take place White responded that he saw no need for such a measure. "There is no hazard to the general public in the way it is applied," he commented.

The MTC spokesman stressed that the application of the herbicide is done under MOE guidelines and that those involved with the application and carrying of the product are properly trained for the task.

Hydro says no

A spokesman for Ontario Hydro, another major user of herbicides in the province, said they would not be using the controversial chemical. Bob Swift, public relations officer at the Barrie office outlined the utility's policy with regard to the chemical.

"In the spring of 1979 all Ontario Hydro offices in the province were instructed to stop using 2-4-5-T and 2-4-5-TP. The use was suspended pending a final decision from the Ministry of the Environment." Swift said that the material within the control of the utility was returned to the central depot in Toronto.

"Earlier this year, because of the uncertainty surrounding the use of the herbicide, Ontario Hydro made the ban permanent," Swift stated. He said the utility has not re-applied to the Ministry of the Environment to use the chemical again even though the minister has temporarily lifted the ban on its use in the province.

Swift said that the utility continues to spray along its right of way to control plant growth. The most commonly used chemical is 2-4-D.

He pointed out that rather than spraying from a vehicle or aircraft, the Ontario Hydro personnel usually walk through an area dousing those plants which may pose a hazard to hydro activities with the herbicide. He said that in remote areas of Ontario the spraying may be carried out by aircraft.

Two charges laid following auto mishap

A charge of impaired driving and one of obstructing a police officer in the course of his duty have been laid against a Toronto couple following an incident April 4.

According to police a car driven by Nancy Trimm, 36, of Toronto, struck a parked vehicle at the Wagon Wheel Hotel parking lot. The mishap caused $1200 damage. The Trimm vehicle was apparently turning into the lot from Highway 35 when it missed the driveway and struck the parked car.

During the subsequent investigation Cyril J. Trimm told officers that he was the driver of the car at the time of the accident. A minor altercation between Cyril Trimm and the police officer also took place at the detachment office.

Nancy Trimm has been charged with impaired driving while Cyril Trimm was charged with obstruction.

Constable Al Barnes investigated the incidents.

Mail boxes and cars

A charge of careless driving has been laid against a Thunder Bay man after the vehicle he was driving collided with two mail boxes and a parked car on Highway 121 east of Haliburton. The accident took place April 5.

According to police James

Minden firefighters responded to the first grass fire of the season Monday afternoon. The brigade was called to Blairhampton to deal with the blaze. The flames had scourched several large fields and destroyed a fence as they were pushed along by a steady southerly breeze. Fireman Bob Wells wets down a burning tree trunk during the effort to bring the blaze under control.

Missing machine gun mystery

Police have requested the assistance of the general public in obtaining more information about a machine gun stolen in late March.

The inoperative gun was removed from the cenotaph in Haliburton sometime between March 29 and 31. The weapon belongs to the Municipality of Dysart. Police have only been able to obtain a vague description of the missing weapon and request anyone with knowledge of the gun contact Constable Bill Clendenning at the Minden OPP detachment.

Haliburton: neither north nor south

According to Victoria-Haliburton MPP John Eakins, this county is caught in a "no-man's land", somewhere between northern and southern Ontario.

The provincial representative made the comments last week in response to the report that eastern Ontario counties have been granted access to DREE funds to assist with economic development. Eakins noted that while Haliburton County suffers from the same kind of economic problems as those experienced in northern Ontario, this area has not been classified as an area which qualifies for DREE (Department of Regional Economic Expansion) support.

"We are going to have to have a serious review of the qualifications for DREE," Eakins commented from his Toronto office. "The terms of DREE have to be changed to take into account conditions in Haliburton County."

The MPP stated that Haliburton County falls outside of the present qualifications now because there is no large industry here. He noted that when factories in some areas lay-off several hundred workers there is an immediate outcry and governments rush to provide support. However, he indicated that since there was no large industry in the county, these sort of fluctuations do not occur.

The Victoria-Haliburton MPP said he planned to meet with Ontario treasurer Frank Miller, the MPP for Muskoka, to discuss the exclusion of Haliburton County from the DREE program. (DREE funds are provided by the federal government with the provinical authorities deciding the areas where the money can be best used.)

Eakins said he hoped to meet with DREE officials in

Library - cultural centre fund

The following amounts have been raised through various projects held during the past year in support of the new library-cultural centre comples:

Quilt raffle $160.25; sale of HastiNotes $244.75; Bake sale $165.35; Movie Project $74.25; funds collected from jars placed in stores and the library $139.42.

Other donations received during 1980: Minden Women's Institute $82.75; Len Lonsberry (memoriam) $10; Lily Hogg $10; Mr. and Mrs. Murray Robertson $25; H. Duckworth $25; Maude Coulter $10; Annie Dawson $25.

The total amount reported in The Times to date is: $12,903.54.

Warm ... from the outside in Except for the steeply slanted roof, from the outside any passer-by would probably not think there was much different about Ron and Toos Reid's house. It appears to be an average two storey home with a stucco facing.

It isn't until one goes inside the residence, just off the Vankoughnet Highway on Buckslide Road west of Carnarvon, that one realizes the structure is of special design and construction.

"We have built the house to take advantage of the natural heating power of the sun," Ron explains. "This past winter we used approximately 12 face cords (three regular cords) of wood to heat the house and relied for the remainder of our heating on the power of the sun". The Reid's have no back-up oil or electric heating system.

The story of their excellent example of a passively heated home goes back several years. The Reid's had moved to the area in 1978 after purchasing an old farm house on their present two acre lot. Just before Christmas in 1978, fire destroyed that home.

As avid readers of such energy conscious magazines as Harrowsmith and Mother Earth News, they decided if they were to rebuild, they would incorporate as many features as possible to eliminate their reliance on costly energy to keep them warm in winter (and cool in the summer).

With the help of Joe Lstiburek of Toronto, they designed a residence that takes maximum advantage of the (free) energy provided almost daily by the sun.

The first step was to orient the house on an east-west axis, giving maximum exposure to the south sky, where, in the coldest days of winter, the sun traces its daily course. A natural rise in the land to the northwest shields the house from the direct blasts of the harshest winter winds, but to eliminate heat loss rooms on the north and west walls were limited to one small, triple-glazed window each.

In contrast the south wall of the main floor of the house is a series of windows, double glazed, through which the sun beams during the winter, delivering its heat to the interior of the structure.

The steeply slanted roof was specifically designed to take advantage of the sun as well. Sloped at 42 degrees, the roof angle is the optimum if the Reids wished to install an active solar heat collection system. At the moment they are satisfied wth the results received through the passive designs of the house and, although the roof could support the heavy collection system, they do not intend to install one at the moment. (While the roof may be set at the proper angle for the winter sun, the steepness of the slope also results in the more than occasional avalanche when it snows...one of the few disadvantages of the design.)

To take full advantage of the heat provided by the design of the house, the insulation factor was increased as well. The ceiling, generally the area in any home with the greatest heat loss, was insulated to an R-40 factor. The walls are rated at R-25 and the basement floor has an R-20 rating.

But certainly the most unique feature of the Reid home is the method of construction used for the walls. Quite literally the walls have been built inside-out, when compared to the "normal" method of construction.

The interior walls of the home were formed with ten inch cement block. These reach from the basement up to the rooms on the second floor. A decorative block was chosen for the work and the design was turned in toward the interior of the home.

The cement block interior acts as a reservoir for the heat which is trapped inside the house each day. As the building heats up, the blocks absorb the heat, releasing that energy during the night. To add to the holding ability of the blocks and to increase their mass, as the wall was constructed, sand was poured into the interior spaces of each block.

To the outside of the block walls, four by eight sheets of six inch styrofoam material was attached by ramsetting. A fibreglass and cloth mixture with cement was used to seal the foam sheets. Over this hardened shell a stucco covering was applied.

With the cement blocks on the inside of the house and the insulation on the outside, the formation of the walls represents a reversal of the traditional building methods.

Other features add to the energy efficiency of the house. The roof extends four feet past the south wall. During the winter months the sun rides low in the sky and so the rays of the sun reach in past this extended eave to penetrate the windows. "In December the sun was reaching the back wall of the living room," Toos points out. When we visited the home on Saturday of last week (1 p.m.) the eave had blocked all but a small sliver of sunlight from the interior of the house. The overhang, while allowing the sun in during the winter, will help to keep the house cool in the summer months.

While the Reids look to the sun for an important part of their winter heating (they estimate that close to 50% of their heating was provided by sunlight this past season) they do have a fireplace in the living room and a small model Lakefield stove in the basement. "I recall only a few occasions when I had to get up in the middle of the night to stoke the stove," Ron said.

The fireplace efficiency is enhanced with glass doors and a built-in heat-a-lator. A vent connects this fan operated system to the interior. Fresh air is drawn in, circulated around the fireplace jacket and out through vents at the side of the unit.

The system of drawing the cold air from outside, heating and circulating it through the house has another advantage as well. It creates a slightly higher air pressure inside the home which discourages drafts and the intrusion of cold air when doors are opened.

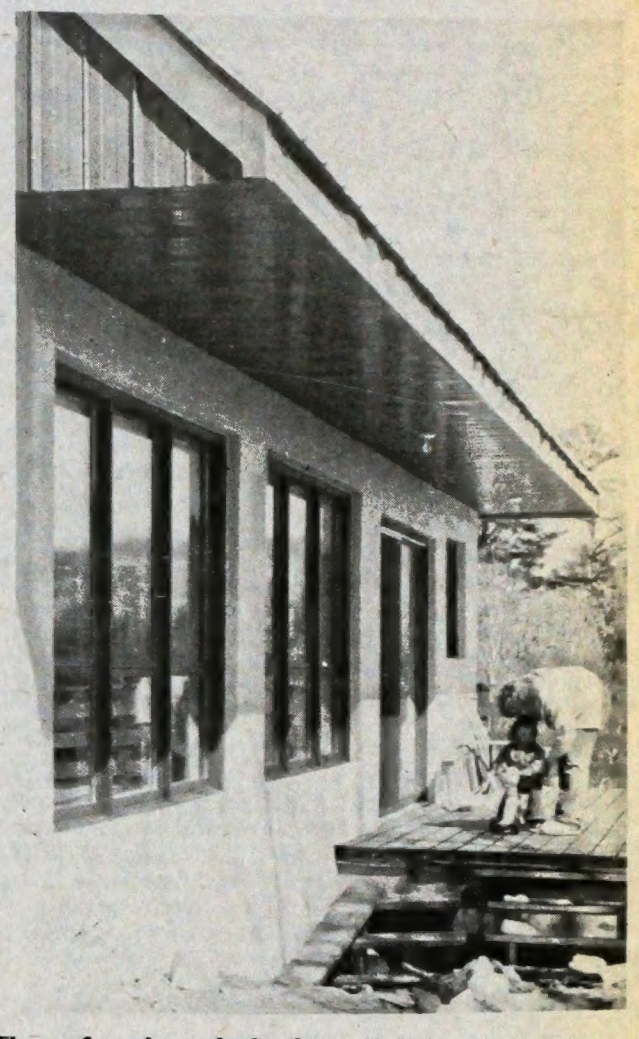
Another unique feature of the home is a vent which runs the full length of the interior chimney. A small fan in the basement of the house draws the warm air down from the cathedral ceiling of the house. This warm air is pumped into the basement and by natural convection is recirculated through vents to the rooms above.

With the help of the sun, the Reids have found that they need only use the sealed fireplace for a great deal of their heating. Only when the temperature drops below -3 Celsius is the basement stove stoked.

A true test of the capabilities of the passive solar heating design came just last month. The family had to be away from the home for four days and of course during that time the fires burned out. The heating of the house, and the protection of water pipes and other items that could be damaged by freezing, was totally in the hands of the sun. When they returned to their home the Reids noted on a special indicator thermometer that the temperature in the home had not dropped below four degrees Celsius, warm enough to provide the needed protection.

During the period they were away, the area experienced some of the coldest weather of the winter with temperatures dropping to minus 20 degrees. The four-day interval had proven to the Reids that their efforts in attempting to design an energy efficient home had been successful.

As for the cost, the couple feel that contruction expenses for their four bedroom home were no higher than that which would be incurred in a conventional home.



The roof overhang shades the south facing windows from the sun during the warm months, but during the winter, when the sun is low in the sky, the rays can reach the interior of the building to assist with the heating.

Toos and Ron Reid share a quiet moment with their son Simon in the livingroom of their home on Buckslide Road. The cathedral ceiling is functional in that it allows the heat trapped by the southerly facing windows to circulate to the upper floor. The open concept also adds a feeling of spaciousness. Note the cement block wall, part of the unique design of the house.

Canal opens May 16

Mr. J. C. Christakos, Director, Ontario Region, Parks Canada announced the opening dates for the Parks Canada Heritage Canals in Ontario earlier this month.

The Rideau Canal and the Trent-Severn Waterway will open Friday, May 16, 1980. This opening date is contingent on water levels. High spring flows could delay safe navigation on either waterway, for several days. However, Mr. Christakos said that due to low snow levels this past winter there does not appear to be a problem this spring.

The hours of operation for the Rideau Canal and the Trent-Severen Waterway for the 1980 season will be:

Friday, May 16 - Thursday, June 19 inclusive
Monday-Thursday 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.
Friday-Sunday and holidays 8:30 a.m. - 7:30 p.m.

Friday, June 20 - Monday, September 1 inclusive
8:30 a.m. - 7:30 p.m.

Tuesday, September 2 - Sunday, September 14 inclusive
Monday-Thursday 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.
Friday-Sunday 8:30 a.m. - 7:30 p.m.

Monday, September 15 - Wednesday, October 15 inclusive
8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

Group mixes business with wine tasting

A new, and rather mysterious business association has sprung up around the fertile grounds of Carnarvon. The association, which claims to represent the business community in the greater (or lesser) metropolitan area surrounding the intersection of Highway 35 and the Vankoughnet Road, has already held its first meeting. A second is planned for April 15.

One of the more off-beat aims of the organization is the annexation of Minden and Haliburton Villages. On the serious side, the meetings of the association features a wine tasting ritual which appears to have become a popular adjunct to the group's efforts.

The following press release, to be read with appropriate cautiousness, was issued recently by the organization.

The second mass meeting of the Metropolitan Carnarvon Board of Trade and Wine Tasting Society will be held on Tuesday, April 15 at 7:30 p.m. at the Foggy Bottom, a favourite meetery near the heart of beautiful midtown Carnarvon.

All merchants whose business is based in Metropolitan Carnarvon are invited to ponder a fascinating agenda which includes among other things wine tasting (naturally), publication of the Metro Carnarvon Cliffhanger (not quite a metropolitan daily), refreshments, the positive power of the magic in the number 3, the benefits of membership in the society and appropriate fees, refreshments, adoption of a coat of arms, and draughty breaks.

In addition, consideration will be given to the wisdom of further pursuing the annexation of Minden and Haliburton (or Haliburton and Minden if you live nearer the Harburn Wells) and the pros and cons of selected canditates for the centrefold in the first edition of the Cliffhanger.

More information can be extracted without effort from the very temporary Mayor of Carnarvon, Ms. LOTTA GUTTZ. Just phone 489-2792. Anyone planning to attend this important meeting is reminded of the magic in the number 3. A covercharge of $3.33 per person is required to look after the food and drink.

An impossible dream comes true

By W. Roger Worth

"Either we mobilize the people's savings in our regions and for ourselves or those regions will forever remain underdeveloped and economically weak."

Those words written by Jacques Gagnon in the early 1970s were the underlying basis of what many considered one man's impossible dream, a simple method to involve people directly in the health and vitality of their local economy.

Bankers, financial institutions and the big business leaders laughed when Gagnon set up an organization called the Caisses d'Entraide Economique in the small Quebec town of Alma in 1960.

The aim of the organization: to foster job creation by funneling community savings into local and regional small and medium-sized businesses, rather than having the funds invested through the major financial institutions in projects and developments far from home.

Roger Worth is Director, Public Affairs, Canadian Federation of Independent Business.

Gagnon died recently, but he left an organization that boasts more than $1.3 billion in assets, most of it invested in 68 local Quebec communities.

The bankers and financiers no longer laugh at Gagnon's "impossible dream." The dream has come true.

The 328,000 Quebecers investing their hard earned-money in Gagnon's brainchild know the people borrowing the funds. It's the local hardware merchant who wants to expand, the owner of a machine shop borrowing money to buy new equipment, and the person with a new business idea that requires financing.

A key element in Gagnon's success: the borrowers are generally neighbors and employers.

The Canadian Federation of Independent Business, for example, estimates a majority of its 7,200 Quebec members have received support from the Caisses d'Entraide.

The remarkable experience of the Caisses d'Entraide is not well known in Canada, which is too bad.

Jacques Gagnon has almost single handedly and irrevocably dispelled the age-old argument that Canadians are too conservative, prepared to invest only in bonds and blue chip stocks. Gagnon has proved that, given the right investment vehicle and conditions, it is still possible to involve people in what amounts to a self-help project.

Following Gagnon's death, a foundation was established to research and find ways to help the small and medium-sized business sector, which is good news indeed. Gagnon will not be forgotten.

Letters from Lorraine

Lorraine Perry is an Ingoldsby high school student who is spending a year in Belgium as part of an exchange program. Her participation in the program is sponsored by Rotary International and the Minden Rotary Club.

Her family has agreed to share some of her experiences with our readers through the letters she sends home. The following are excerpts from a letter sent February 19.

I have heard a lot about the relationship between Canada and the United States because of the six hostages which escaped through the efforts of our embassy in Iran. I was talking to one of my American friends in Belgium and he hadn't heard of the "Great Canadian Rescue". I couldn't believe it!...

Thanks for the comical Muppet birthday card with Miss Piggy. The Muppet show does exist over here. It is French, of course, but as funny as ever...

As of today I have received 167 letters from people in Canada. I can't begin to thank you all so very much. I hope everyone understands why I am unable to answer each letter immediately. I try hard, believe me!...

The weather here continues to be the same, just like spring. I have been watching the winter Olympic Games when possible. You don't know how much I would love to be freezing cold and walking in two feet of snow for one day at least. For a couple of days here last week I was outside with just a pull-over on. A day later it was back to winter weather. You have to be prepared for changes in the weather.

We will be having a holiday for the Mardi Gras.

Saturday afternoon I went with Nicole and one of her friends to Namur and we did some window shopping. All of the stores have the summer fashions on display in their windows and on their racks. The colours for 1980 are purples, violets, pinks, roses and other bright wonderful colours and soft shades. We had our 4 p.m. tea time in a great little patisserie. The tea break has become a popular custom with me. We usually eat bread and jam, a piece of pie or cake. It is a tradition in Belgium, and a great one at that. I wish I could send you samples of the cakes, pies, tarts, chocolates, etc. They are unbelievably delicious.

Saturday night I went to the basketball game, Fleures vs. Ghent. Fleures won of course, 94-85. The audience wasn't as violent as the last game...

Tomorrow I will be going to Binche, where there is the biggest Mardi Gras celebrations in Belgium. The Rotary Club has rented a restaurant window so that we can watch the festivities. We will be staying overnight with Rotary families in the area...

Ottawa as well shortly to discuss the situation.

"I want to know why Haliburton has not been included," Eakins stated. He said that this county needed the extra assistance more than those counties to the east which were included in the latest program.

The MPP said that he is considering the possibility of introducing a private members bill in the provincial legislature to change the boundaries between northern and southern Ontario. The line, which was drawn arbitrarily by the provincial government for grant purposes, generally follows the French River between Lake Huron and the Quebec border.

Eakins said that he had expected some major changes in the classifications for the area he called "middle Ontario", but said that the federal government was apparently not in favour of it.

The local representative stressed that he would continue to press for changes to qualifications for DREE funding for this area.

Police

F. Carroll was travelling west on the highway when his vehicle hit a mail box on the south side of the road. The Carroll vehicle then struck a parked car and hit a second mail box before coming to rest on a lawn. Carroll's vehicle, a 1977 pick-up truck received $2000 damage while the parked car sustained $2000 damage as well. The mail boxes were valued at $100.

The accident was investigated by Constable Mike Legge.

Car rammed

A car parked in the Minden Texaco Service Station lot sustained $2000 damage after it was rammed by another driven by Reginald Eveligh, 30, of Minden. The accident took place March 31.

According to police the driver was about to leave the lot when his foot slipped from the brake pedal to the accelerator. The Eveligh vehicle sustained $270.

Corporal Ron Foran investigated the accident.

Hits rock

Minden resident, Sandy Willis, 35, was the driver of a 1977 model automobile which left County Road number two and struck a rock cut. The accident occurred March 29.

The driver was travelling east when the vehicle entered the ditch and struck the rock. The car sustained $1700 damage.

The accident was investigated by Constable Brian Dunham.

Rolled over

A single car accident on Highway 519 in the Haliburton area resulted in minor injuries for a Haliburton man. Tony J. Scheffee, 16, was driving north on the highway when his 1972 model car entered the west ditch, struck a rock and rolled over.

The man was slightly injured in the mishap. The auto sustained $1000 damage.

Constable Gary Chapman of Minden OPP investigated.

Reaching for the sun

Getting by for a whole winter with just three cords of wood to heat a full-sized house...shirking oil fired or electrical back-up heating systems...taking advantage of the greatest source of energy available to man, the sun...

The comments above read like phrases stolen from a pie-in-the-sky, back to the earth, new pioneer magazine that entices city folk to forsake their energy wasting ways and escape to the supposed glories of country living. All too often, of course, the enticements of the printed page are nothing more than a poorly disguised map to disaster.

However, these phrases do represent excerpts from a genuine success story. Ron and Toos Reid, who live on the Buckslide Road have, with a little careful engineering, tapped the richest source of energy known to man. Their success is not only proof that those promises extolled on the pages of the likes of Harrowsmith or Mother Earth News can become realities (if approached in a rational way) but also that there is a reasonable alternative to burning precious and expensive oil, or relying on Ontario Hydro to deliver heat.

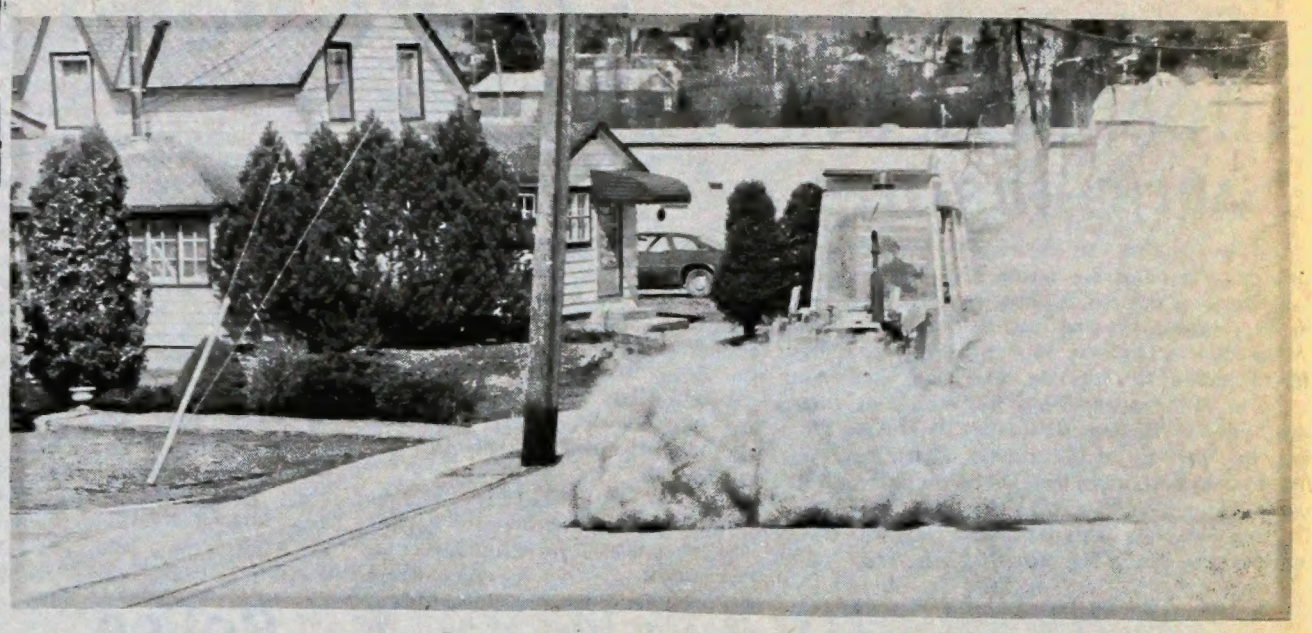
Indeed, their home, with its unique design, is proof that with careful planning, Canadians can make a concerted effort at energy conservation.

Whether one does it to cut the drain on the pocketbook, or simply for the satisfaction of doing something positive to conserve, the technology to improve energy efficiency is here. It is simply a matter of tapping it.

One of the most inspiring aspects of the unique design of the Reid home is that when the house was unattended for four days, when the fires in the stove and fireplace had finally died away, and when the temperature outside plunged to 20 degrees below, the heat radiating from our sun provided enough energy to keep temperatures within the house from sinking below the freezing mark and possibly causing damage to the water system.

This home is not the only example of strides toward energy efficiency being made in Haliburton County. There are many individuals and groups who have dedicated a portion of their time, money and effort to become less reliant on traditional energy forms. We congratulate them for their enthusiasm, inventiveness and their vision.

We live in a world of dwindling resources ... where energy, in its most conventional forms, is becoming increasingly scarce and costly. Most of the world has ignored the great potential of the sun, but we believe, its day is about to dawn. It is the one source of energy that can be shared equally with everybody and, if nothing else, the price is right.



A sure sign of spring is the roar of the street sweeper as it clears away the debris left in winter's wake. A billow of dust races before the machine as it clears the side of the Bobcaygeon Road, north of the bridge.

REPORT FROM QUEEN'S PARK

By John Eakins, M.P.P.

In December, 1978, the Ontario Ministry of Health appointed an interministerial committee to examine the issues and options affecting all aspects of consent to health care services.

This committee has recently submitted its recommendations in the form of a draft bill to be presented to the Ontario Legislature.

The committee has recommended that legislation pertaining to the age of consent for medical procedures on minors and for medical procedures on incompetent individuals be amended.

The purpose of this amendment is to give greater legal protection to health care providers and health care institutions.

Widespread opposition to this proposed bill on medical consent is emerging across the province. I feel this bill, if approved as drafted, could be dangerous, for it would permit abortion and treatment of venereal disease as well as other medical treatment without parental notification or consent.

A Toronto lawyer has described it as a triumph of technology over humanity - as the rights of the individual - minors and parents of the mentally handicapped - would no longer have the full protection of the law.

The bill would provide for doctors to treat those 16 years and under whom they deem mature enough to understand the consequence of the procedure.

I feel that in pursuing legislation in such sensitive areas by our government, it is absolutely necessary that the press, religious denominations, family oriented associations, and other public groups be kept fully informed and given specific and ample opportunity to have input and submit recommendations.

I shall keep you informed and would appreciate hearing your comments from time to time on this.

Editor:

Just a note of gratitude to two local residents who came to my aid. After getting stuck, while on business, April 2, in the bog just off Horseshoe Lake Road, Garnet Davis and Ivan Clark came to my aid and spent most of an hour digging and pulling me out. Just another helping of that "Highland" hospitality. With thanks.

Letters

Editor:

For many years, I have approached my good friends and associates to request help in supporting the work of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children on behalf of children with physical handicaps. I have never been let down. I want you to know how much I have always appreciated your continued interest and understanding of the accomplishments that must be made in the field of children's rehabilitation. For the most part, it has been a long and uphill battle, but progress is now being achieved, at a more rapid pace than ever before, and the future looks bright.

You have helped to make wonderful things happen. The Annual Snowarama has developed into a tremendous fundraising event that this year raised $800,000 in Ontario. The largest amount ever raised this way to my knowledge, in the world. This amount will undoubtedly help to augment the Society's target for 1980, to raise $6,000,000 to help physically handicapped children in this province.

By your excellent media coverage demonstrating faith in our efforts, the goals will be reached. That is, to provide disabled children with the opportunity to reach their fullest potential and take their rightful place in the community.

I wish to thank at this time, not only you in the media but all snowmobilers, Ontario Snowmobile Industry Association, Molson's Brewery (Ontario) Limited, our Easter Seal Service Clubs, and all volunteers that made this event truly successful.

1981 is the International Year of Disabled Persons. The focus will be on integration - we want all of our youngsters to share an equal opportunity, regardless of handicap, to contribute to society in their own way within our communities. When these children become adults, there must be a better world for them. It was a great honour for Miss Snowarama, Nadia de Franco and me to participate in Snowarama. I will be riding again in 1981.

Thank you again for your support that contributed to the success of this year's Million Dollar Ride.

Whipper Watson.

Dump study is down and out

A survey of potential garbage dump locations in the county, proposed by the Ministry of the Environment (MOE), will not take place. The decision not to proceed with the study was taken at the March 26 meeting of county council.

The MOE had proposed the study in an effort to identify potential areas in the county that could be developed into landfill sites. The study was also to examine the current methods of garbage disposal to see how they might be improved. A suggestion that a number of central dumps be established, rather than have several in each municipality was made during the discussions between the ministry and county officials.

The matter had first been suggested at the February meeting of the council. It was rejected at that time by a close vote and the councillors agreed to take the question back to their municipal councils for further discussion. The second poll, taken formally at the March 26 meeting, showed that a majority of the members of the council were opposed to the study.

The survey would have cost an estimated $28,000 with the ministry of the environment meeting half that cost.

The four municipalities with the largest assessment in the county, Dysart; Anson, Hindon and Minden; Sherborne, Livingstone and McLintock; and Stanhope voted in favour of the study. The votes of the other municipalities carried more weight, however, and the motion was defeated.

A special Son Rise Service Sunday morning in Haliburton drew over 100 worshipers to Sky Line Park. The view and outdoor setting provided an ideal location for the celebration of the Easter festival.

Taking advantage of new theme park

Will the big new multi-million dollar Disneyland type theme park now under construction at Maple near Toronto be a blessing or a threat to tourism in Haliburton?

Tonight business people in the Highlands will have a first hand opportunity to investigate the implications on the new Canada Wonderland theme park attraction between Toronto and Barrie and its potential impact on tourism in the Haliburton Highlands.

April 9 at 7:30 p.m., at the PineStone Inn, Steve Abrams, public relations manager for Canada Wonderland, will present comprehensive details of the development to date in a combined talk and film presentation on the concept and marketing potential of this major tourist attraction.

"We're talking about a 108-million dollar project," Abrams told Haliburton Chamber of commerce representatives who are hosting the gathering at the PineStone, "and as a private venture we certainly expect a healthy return on investment."

"Canada Wonderland will be a major North American tourist attraction – bigger than Disneyland but not quite the size of DisneyWorld in Florida". Abrams pointed out. "It's aimed at families and children and was well researched before being launched."

Indications are that it will alter the entire tourism pattern in southern Ontario and will draw mammoth crowds of new travellers to a hub that's less than two hours from Haliburton.

John Hogg, president of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce feels that most business people in Haliburton will be more than passively interested in the economic effect the giant park could create locally.

The developers of Canada Wonderland feel it can lure 2.6 million people (200 thousand from the U.S.) into the vicinity of the park from May through August in its first year. It is anticipated that these 2.6 million people will spend only 25% of their time actually in the park. "That means a brand new market of vacationers, probably with sore feet and aching muscles looking for relaxation, that Haliburton entrepreneurs can pursue." Chamber Manager Bob Stinson was quick to point out. "Certainly worth thinking about."

"On the other side of the coin," Stinson continued, "Canada Wonderland is a potential deterrent to Haliburton's normal flow of cottagers and vacationers. The very proximity which makes it a potential of new tourists also makes it a potential distraction for our normal summer traffic."

"Aggressive tourist areas like Muskoka and Huronia are already planning how they will cope with this new tourist attraction." John Hogg pointed out. "I'm sure Haliburton business people will not want to take a back seat in this regard. We really expect a strong turn out to tonight's meeting with Steven Abrams at the PineStone. It should be an exciting evening. It starts at 7:30 p.m. and best of all there is no charge."

Simple Justice

This is now the law.

Know your rights. Consider your options.

The new Provincial Offences Act introduces a new form of law designed especially for minor offences such as traffic, liquor, hunting and fishing violations. The new system is simple, informal and convenient, and offers anyone charged with a minor offence a new choice for handling his or her case. But you have to act. It's up to you.

Group will co-ordinate acid rain information

The activities of the Haliburton County Anti-Pollution Committee with regard to acid rain, have changed since the group met with Harry Parrott, the Minister of the Environment last month.

The group was previously actively pursuing the liming of certain lakes in the county as a protection against the impact of acidified precipitation. However, according to a press release issued last week, the group will now act as a clearing centre for acid rain information.

The Anti-Pollution Committee had proposed through one of its members, Michael Collins, that an experimental liming of a lake in Haliburton County be undertaken. Mr. Collins had told a number of municipal meetings during the past few months that spreading gravel-sized pieces of limestone on the frozen surface of a lake during the winter could be one method of neutralizing the damage being done by the acid.

Under the new terms of reference, the group will work in co-ordination with MOE. "We will provide written commentaries of a general nature, outlining the problem and its effect on the ecology and life-systems of the area," the press release stated.

It indicated that committee members would be available to speak to interested groups.

The press release also indicated that the anti-pollution group would not give up its right to criticize MOE programs even through it has agreed to co-ordinate its efforts with the Ministry. "We shall be free to both inform the public and, if called for, to criticize the programs of the Ministry of the Environment," the press release stated.

The group said it has taken on the role as spokesman for the public, "in their concerns with the programs, both present and future, of the Ministry of the Environment.

The anti-pollution organization indicated they would welcome inquiries from other groups seeking information on acid rain or who would like to become involved in an exchange of data.

In closing the press release notes, "We reserve the right to bring into effect our own liming program should the Ministry of the Environment at any time for invalid reasons, withdraw their own."

Green Thumb Corner

Controlling insects and disease in a garden can become an obsession with some green thumb planters. The most common defense against predators are chemical agents. However, according to W. P. Roberts of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, it is not always necessary to resort to chemical warfare to keep your garden bug-free. He offers the following tips on controlling insects and plant diseases.

Bug out

Non-chemical control and biological control methods are becoming more popular with home gardeners. Although chemical control measures can be used to rid the garden of insect and disease pests, home gardeners can manage effectively without them in many cases. Non-chemical control measures are not practical for large-scale growers, but they can be effective and interesting for home gardeners.

Many insect and disease pests cause unsightly injury without reducing the edibility of the crop. Discarding a few leaves or a small amount of produce is a much easier and inexpensive method of control than routine chemical sprays. Home gardeners are more likely to accept some injury and continue growing food for enjoyment.

The key factor in insect and disease control is getting a good start planning and planting the garden area. Start with well-worked and weed-free garden soil. Check the source and varieties of seeds carefully. Purchase seeds from a reputable seed house. Check plant varieties for disease resistance. The time spent in seed selection prevents many problems during the growing season.

When planting, allow enough space to prevent over-crowding. Dense planting allows humidity to build up in the canopy, creating an excellent environment for the development and spread of plant diseases. Healthy, vigorously-growing plants are the best defenses against insect and disease damage. If you remove the conditions which favor disease, healthier plants result. Space plants far enough apart to allow good air circulation. This allows the foliage to dry quickly, and allows the plant maximum sunlight for vigorous growth.

Crops such as radishes, beets, carrots and beans may require thinning to provide enough space for individual plants.

Frequently, getting an early start in the garden does more harm than good. Planting seeds or transplants too early in the spring may result in slow plant growth and increased losses from insects and disease. Seed maggots, damping-off, and soil-borne seed diseases often wipe out a large percentage of the crop before it is established. The more rapidly plants are established and growth begins, the fewer the pest problems.

Many insect problems that affect vegetables can be avoided by adjusting the planting date. Early plantings of carrots are frequently attacked and ruined by carrot rust fly. Planting carrots after June 1 reduces the incidence of rust fly damage. Maggots attacking radish crops can be controlled using the same method. Young plants growing vigorously can overcome a certain amount of maggot activity.

Changing soil texture can also prevent vegetable crop losses caused by root maggots. Radishes grown in soil with lots of organic matter or fresh manure show less injury from root maggots. The crop is unattractive to the adult fly, so the fly will not lay eggs near that crop.

Planting a clove of garlic in with onions or radishes can also reduce the injury from maggots. Some plants, such as garlic and marigolds, possess natural chemicals which act as insect repellants. Marigolds, mixed randomly in garden plots or in borders, discourage aphids. Garlic prevents buildups of aphids and red spider mites on many plants.

Many chemical pesticides used for pest insect control also kill beneficial insects. If you stop using chemical pesticides, you encourage the presence of beneficial species.

Such insects as parasitic wasps, ladybird beetles, praying mantis and ground beetles help keep aphids and caterpillars at low levels. You can buy some beneficial insects at garden centers. However, once the beneficial insects are released they do not usually stay in the garden area. Once they destroy their prey, they search other areas for new prey. Insects are mobile organisms, and tend to disperse over large areas.

You can also buy natural insecticides at many garden centers. These natural insecticides include derris dust or rotenone, and pyrethrum, which is manufactured from a species of chrysanthemum. A bacteria culture, thuricide, can be used to control many types of caterpillars and the spruce budworm larvae.

The key to successful gardening is a well-maintained and well-planned garden plot. Any factor which reduces plant vigor makes that plant more susceptible to insect or disease attack.

For more information about non-chemical insect and disease control, consult Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food Publication 64, Insect and Disease Control in the Home Garden. This booklet includes excellent photographs and descriptions of pest problems. Publication 64 is available from your local agricultural offices, or from the Information Branch, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, Legislative Buildings, Toronto, Ontario M7A 1A5.

Puck talk

The Minden Pee Wees ended their 1979-80 season with a championship ring as they came out the winners of the Baysville Tournament held on Saturday March 29.

The flawless execution of their plays and outstanding net-minding from Andrew Burk led Minden to a 6-3 victory over Lake of Bays, an 8-0 shut-out trouncing of Port Carling and a 3-1 "by the book" defensive championship final win over Haliburton.

The opening game of the tournament was Minden's easiest. They coasted into a 4-0 first period lead, and were ahead 6-1 at the end of the second period before Lake of Bays notched two goals in the third period to make the final score a more respectable 6-3 decision.

Jeff Howe shot three pucks into the opposition net to earn a hat-trick while Mike Gorveatt scored twice and added two assists. Tom Macleod netted the other Minden goal.

Andrew Burk was equal to the task as he shut-out Port Carling to help Minden break open a close game for an 8-0 disposal of the opposition.

Greg Newell, Mike Gorveatt, and Paul Walker scored to give Minden a 3-0 lead going into the third period.

The third period was all Minden, as Daryl Ward scored twice, with Mike Gorveatt, Jeff Howe and Greg Newell adding one goal each in the space of five minutes to ensure the Minden victory.

Minden faced tougher opposition in the championship final but pulled through with flying colours in their two goal victory over Haliburton.

Glenn Hall opened the scoring 3:45 into the first period to give Minden an edge they never surrendered.

Less than three minutes later Mike Gorveatt scored what proved to be the winning goal after being set-up by Tom MacLeod and Jeff Howe.

Paul Walker gave Minden a three goal bulge when he scored, unassisted, 3:59 into the second period.

Minden was successful in preserving the 3-0 lead until Chris La Porte lifted the puck behind Minden goaltender Andrew Burk with 1:40 left in the match.

Neither club added anything to their scores, as Minden left Baysville the Pee Wee Tournament champions following the 3-1 victory.

Cleaning and repairing quilts

As the milder weather arrives, it is likely that thick quilt that kept you warm during those long winter nights will be curled to the bottom of the bed. Soon it will be time to store it away for the summer and, before you do so, it is wise to clean it. Here are some tips on the proper methods of cleaning a quilt provided by the Home Economics Branch of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Before putting your quilts away for the season, carefully clean them by hand or machine washing or dry cleaning.

If you decide to wash, choose a sunny day with a slight breeze for quick drying. Spot-clean any stains before washing and let the quilt soak in water for about 15 minutes. While the quilt is soaking, dissolve your detergent first in a bit of water so that it won't stick to the quilt and include softener if the water is hard. Pour the soap solution into the tub and press down on the quilt to loosen the dirt. Continue doing this until the quilt is clean.

When you're ready to rinse, just let the soapy water drain off the quilt. Fill the tub again, repeat the pressing motion, and continue rinsing until the water is clear. Be sure to press out the excess water, and lift the whole quilt at once to reduce strain on the threads. Dry it on a flat surface or over a series of clotheslines, to allow air to circulate.

When washing by machine, use a gentle cycle and do not put the quilt through the spinning motion. As with hand washing, soak the quilt for 15 minutes before adding the soap solution. The longer it stays in the washing cycle, the more strain is put on the threads. Ten to 15 minutes should be sufficient time to clean most quilts.

Between washings, remove surface dust by vacuuming with a soft brush attachment.

If you prefer to have your quilts dry-cleaned, chose a reliable outlet. Make sure than only fresh dry-cleaning solvent is used, and that the quilt will not be pressed.

If you have a delicate heirloom quilt and are not sure how to clean it, try contacting a textile expert for advice. Personnel at colleges or museums may be able to help.

To repair holes, use a piece of similar fabric and patch the area using an invisible slip stitch, sewing through only one layer of fabric. If the hole is in a pieced or small applique shape, remove the whole piece of fabric and replace it. If there are any broken threads, use a similar color and re-stitch the area.

Fold the quilts loosely, with the lining side out, and cover with plastic or cotton bags to protect them from dust. To avoid permanent creases, do not weigh them down with heavy articles. Store quilts in a warm, dry area; avoid cold, damp basements and hot attics.

If you take these few precautions your quilts will look almost like new next year, and will also last longer.

Galway-Cavendish

The following are highlights from the minutes of the March 15 Galway Cavendish Township council meeting.

-The members of the council were addressed by Mr. I. James and Mr. S. McElrea of the Regional Assessment Office. The two representatives discussed the impact of equalized assessment on the various property catagories. The council was informed that further study would be needed before it could be determined if equalized assessment should be implemented.

-The reeve and one of the municipality's planning board members were authorized to represent the township in discussions with the Ministry of Natural Resources concerning the possibility of opening a vermiculite mine on lots 19-23, Concession 3 & 4, Cavendish Township. The council also heard a letter from cottage associations representing property owners on Catchacoma, McGinnis, Beaver and Mississauga lakes, in opposition to the land being leased for mining purposes.

Course for pan-handlers

A special course for those involved in the handling of food for the public will be held next week in Minden. The one-day course is sponsored by the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit.

The course is intended for all restaurant, food take-out and institutional foodhandling personnel.

There is no registration fee for the course and anyone interested in attending is welcome. Those completing the three hour session will receive a certificate.

Two sessions are scheduled for Haliburton County. In Minden the course will be held at the Hyland Crest Auditorium, April 15 from 9 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. In Haliburton Village the course will be held in the Dysart Community Centre Auditorium, April 16 from 9 a.m. to 11:45 a.m.

AROUND THE TOWN

by Jeanne Sears

We took a walk in the woods Sunday afternoon to the Ila and Fred Cooper sugar bush and shack. This couple have been tapping and boiling down the maple sap in a traditional "shack", which was once owned by Alfred Langdon. On the walls are dates when Mr. Langdon noted the time of his maple syrup work. If you are looking at the right time you might see the steam flying from the evaporator. Many people in our area make maple syrup and it was once the only source of sweetener in the early days.

I'd like the memory of me to be a happy one.
I'd like to leave an afterglow of smiles
when life is done.
I'd like to leave an echo whispering softly down
the ways,
Of happy times and laughing times and bright and sunny days.
I'd like the tears of those who grieve,
to dry before the sun of Happy memories that I leave when life is done.

The village was like a small city, as it is in the summer, with many cottage folk coming up to check after the winter. The weather was great with nice sunshine, though everyone needed a jacket in the cold wind. We hear the ice is getting thin on the lakes, perhaps it will soon be gone.

A Penney's Worth

by Yvonne Penney

Good Friday turned out as a surprise and a disappointment - we got up to see the ground white with snow which soon turned to rain.

Sympathy of this community is extended to the family and friends of the late Gertie Allcorn who passed away in Toronto on Wednesday, April 2nd.

Best wishes to Geraldine Carr who is in Peterborough Civic Hospital.

Sympathy is also extended to the family of the late Alf Moore, formerly of Minden, who passed away this past week. We are losing a good many of our seniors recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Blair Corcoran and family also Mr. and Mrs. Brian Chambers and family spent the Easter holiday with Bill and Alice Chambers here in Carnarvon.

The Good Friday service at Zion United Church in Carnarvon was well attended.

Other than the rain on Good Friday, the Easter week-end was a good one weather-wise. Many young people spent the Easter holiday with their families - among them were Lynn and Barb Barnhart of Peterborough, Cindy Fletcher of Kitchener, Mark Fennell of Toronto, Paul and Gwen Harrison and Colin and Julie Russell of Montreal and Jan Graham and friend of Toronto.

Our local centenarian, Chalie Fader of Extendicare in Haliburton, spent the Easter holiday with his family at Maple Lake.

From the United Church bulletin of April 6 "Good character like soup is made at home".

The Minden Minor Hockey Dance at the arena on Saturday last was well attended. The draw for the $50 bill was won by Chessel Nesbitt and the large glass turkey was won by Dave Hartin of Kinmount.

Many of our summer cottagers took advantage of the spring-like weather to get their cottages opened up for the season. Welcome back to all our summer visitors.

Les and Fran Clark have returned from their winter holiday in the south. Welcome back, folks!

Because of their significant danger to human health and the environment, polychlorinated biphynels were the first substances regulated under the Environmental Contaminants Act in 1977 to help protect our environment.

SENIOR LEAGUE

by Linda English

Monday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Brubacher came to visit bringing with them a very interesting film called "Waterloo Farmer" The film told us the history of farming in Waterloo County. Mr. and Mrs. Brubacher were born and raised in this part of the country. The people that farm the land are Mennonites who, in the beginning, walked from Pennsylvania to Kitchener. They still farm in the old ways using horses. They work extremely hard but are very happy.

John Brubacher, a young cousin of Reverend Brubacher was shown in this film. He is a revised farmer and feels that farming is a business and therefore farms the modern way with up-to-date machinery. He raises beef cattle and chickens, and grows mainly corn which he feeds his livestock. The residents enjoyed the film very much.

Tuesday morning, Reverend David Barker of Minden Anglican Church held Communion service in the Chapel. Agnes Taylor was here to play the organ for us while we sang some favorite hymns.

In the afternoon, we were pleased to welcome Mrs. Bonnie Lu Berry with her nursery school class. The children sang some action songs, and were quite adorable with their expressions. Our thanks to Mrs. Berry and the children for giving the residents an enjoyable afternoon and to the mothers for making the delicious cookies which were served by the kiddies.

Thursday afternoon, the United Church Women of Haliburton served a delicious variety of cakes at the tea party. It was nice to visit with these familiar ladies, and the residents enjoyed their afternoon tea very much.

Good Friday morning Lieut. Mailman and his family from the Salvation Army in Haliburton came for a sing song, and delivered an inspiring message. Of course Andy, the puppet came along with them and as usual had lots to say. The residents always enjoy the visits from the Salvation Army, and thoroughly enjoy Andy and his antics.

We are pleased to welcome three new residents to Hyland Crest this week. They are Doris Vaughn, Emily Pritty and Emily Smith. We sincerely hope they will enjoy their new home with us.

Easter Sunday, Reverend Barker of Minden Anglican Church held Communion in the Chapel.

Mrs. Zilpah Hie, celebrated her birthday on Easter Sunday. She was presented with a cake and our best wishes.

Easter weekend brought many relatives and friends to visit at Hyland Crest.

WE NEED YOUR HELP!

The Minden Library Committee has started a fund raising drive for the construction of the new library-cultural centre in this community. We need your help! As an indication of your support for this project we urge you to fill out the pledge card below and return it as soon as possible to the fund raising committee.

Please note that donors may indicate which aspect of the new structure, library or art gallery, they wish to have their funds used for. Undirected funds will be used by the community in the area of greatest need. All donations will be acknowledged in The Times. Receipts, for income tax purposes, will be issued for donations over $5.
